

Elizabeth Harper

Biography

Elizabeth Harper is an internationally acclaimed teacher, intuitive, and healer with an extensive clientele, and is rapidly developing a powerful voice at the forefront of the spiritual movement, while establishing herself as an authority on intuitive and psychic development. Her ability to see energy fields led to further training as a color therapist, Aura-Soma, and Colorworks practitioner. The first person to practice intuitive counseling and color therapy at the Omega Institute's celebrated Wellness Center in New York, Elizabeth leads popular workshops there for both paying participants and staff. Her international reputation continues to grow, and she conducts workshops at some of the most important education centers in the United States as well as internationally. She trained at the College of Psychic Studies and the Spiritualists Association of Great Britain, both renowned institutions in London.

She has appeared on Live TV, Weird Night, and The Listening Place on TV and Capitol Radio. Harper has taught in the UK, US, Mexico, and Costa Rica. Considered to be one of the best New Age teachers of our time, she currently pens a regular column called 'Rainbow Spirit' in the Mind, Body, and Spirit Expo magazine, and also writes columns for international magazines like The Spirit Guide (sold in Australia, New Zealand and Singapore), and Renaissance, a bimonthly magazine in South Africa. Her article has also been published in Insight, an Australian magazine.
