

Jenna Baner

Biography

Jenna Baner's just thrilled to be here. A literary enthusiast for as long as she's been able to read and write, she began working at her local library as a teenager, and has spent the following years continuing to write and work. She presently works at a candy shop walking distance from her home in California, where she lives with her family. When she's not reading or writing, Jenna can often be found watching what her sister has described as an "above average" amount of TV.

